

Chapter – I

An Introduction: The Making of V. S. Naipaul

I.1 Purpose and Objective of the Research

I.2 Making of a Writer

I.2.1 Early Childhood

I.2.2 Inheritance of the Craft of Writing

I.2.3 An Opportunity to study in Oxford University

I.2.4 Trinidad-centre of early writing

I.2.5 Experimentation with Non-fiction

I.2.6 Inter-Related Themes of Fiction and Non-fiction

I.2.7 Nobel Prize-Recognition of the Great writer

I.3 Literary Creation - Products from cultural Conflicts

I.3.1 Naipaul's Mood of Recollection

I.4 Naipaul and Diaspora: An Evaluation

I.4.1 Theorizing Diaspora

I.4.2 Diaspora- Conceptual Mapping

I.4.3 Naipaul on the Scene of Diaspora

I.4.4 Evolution of personal History

I.4.5 Naipaul's Controversial Position

I.5 Naipaul and Postcolonial writing: An Evaluation

I.5.1 Review of Postcolonial Literature

I.5.2 Naipaul-A Postcolonial Writer

I.5.3 Postcolonial Travelogues

I.5.4 Postcolonial Elements in Naipaul's Travelogues on India

Chapter - II

Historical Review of Travelogues as a Literary Genre

- II.1 Definition and Motives of Travel Writing
- II.2 The Development of Travel Writing
- II.3 Travelogues and Cultural Identity
- II.4 Travel Narratives of V. S. Naipaul
- II.5 Naipaul- A Travel Writer with a Difference

Chapter III

Naipaul: An Irritated Traveller in 'An Area of Darkness'

III.1 Introduction

III.2 Romantic Preconception of India

III.2.1 Indian Perspective in An Area of Darkness

III.2.2 Encounter with the Indian Bureaucracy

III.2.3 The Function of Beggars

III.2.3 Collective Blindness

III.2.4 Place of Mahatma Gandhi

III.2.5 Craze for Foreign Things

III.2.6 Peaceful Kashmir

III.2.7 Problems of Kashmir Valley

III.2.8 Pilgrimage

III.2.9 The colonial Past

III.2.10 Emergency

III.4 Flight

III.5 Naipaul's Sensibility: Triple Identity

III.6 Critical Analysis

III.7 An Area of Darkness- A Classical Case of Misinterpretation?

Chapter IV

Naipaul's Interrogation and Interpretation of India in India: A Wounded Civilization

IV.1 Introduction

IV.2 Naipaul's Preconceived Notions of India

IV.3 Indian Perspective in India: A Wounded Civilization

IV.3.1 Eternal Continuity of India

IV.3.2 Karma Vs Non-Violence

IV.3.3 Broken 'Cultural Heartland'

IV.3.4 India Will Go on

IV.3.5 Spirit of Rejection

IV.3.6 Changing face of middle and lower middle class

IV.3.7 Development in Disguise

IV. 3.8 Naxalism- a Political Failure?

IV.3.9 Gandhianism

IV.3.10 Assimilation of Diverse Influences

IV.3.11 Paradise Lost?

IV.4 Naipaul's Evaluation of Indian Culture

Chapter-V

Naipaul's Celebration of Liberation of spirit in India: A Million Mutinies Now

V.1 Introduction

V.2 Change of Perception

V. 3. Indian Perspective in India: A Million Mutinies Now

V.3.1 Bombay-City of Dreams

V.3.2 Emergence of Political Leaders

V.3.3 Dilemma of Muslim Youngsters

V.3.4 Commercialization of Rituals

V.3.5 Bombay- Home of Migrants

V.3.6 Movement in the Lower Class

V.3.7 Changing face of South India

V.3.8 Periyar Movement

V.3.9 Glimpses of Eastern India

V.3.10 Response of Indian Muslims to Partition

V.3.11 Emancipation of Women

V.3.12 Sikh Insurgency

V.3.13 Return to India

V.4 Resurgent lives of Women

V.5 Critical Analysis

Chapter VI:
The Conclusion

Select Bibliography